You are warmly invited to a thought provoking evening where you will have the opportunity to engage with author Saskia Tepe, daughter of a Holocaust survivor and refugee.

27th January marks National Holocaust Memorial Day in the UK and we would like to hear from young people in the Jewish Community and members of Interfaith Scotland about how they would wish to remember the Holocaust and subsequent genocides while building a world where people live on in peace with mutual trust and respect.

‘For the survivor death is not the problem. Death was an everyday occurrence. We learned to live with death. The problem is to adjust to life, to living. You must teach us about living.’

Elie Wiesel

Venue: Scottish Jewish Archives Centre, Garnethill Synagogue, Glasgow (entrance on Garnet Street)
23rd January from 6-8.30 pm

Light refreshments will be served
