SCOTTISH COUNCIL OF JEWISH COMMUNITIES

www.scojec.org
scojec@scojec.org
222 Fenwick Rd, Giffnock, Glasgow, G46 6UE
0141 638 6411

The Scottish Council of Jewish Communities (SCoJeC) is the representative body of all the Jewish communities in Scotland. The Council advances public understanding about the Jewish religion, culture and community, by providing information and assistance to educational, health, and welfare organisations, representing the Jewish community in Scotland to Government and other statutory and official bodies, and liaising with Ministers, MSPs, Churches, Trades Unions, and others on matters affecting the Jewish community. The Council also provides a support network for the smaller communities and individuals and families who live outwith any Jewish community, and assists organisations within the Scottish Jewish community to comply with various regulatory requirements. SCoJeC also promotes dialogue and understanding between the Jewish community and other communities in Scotland, and works in partnership with other organisations and stakeholders to promote equality, good relations, and understanding among community groups.

GLASGOW Click here for a map of places of Jewish interest in Glasgow

Glasgow is home to the largest Jewish Community in Scotland. Most of the community lives in East Renfrewshire on the south side of the city, which is also where most of the religious, welfare and social organisations are based. There are five synagogues in Glasgow, four Orthodox and one Reform.

Glasgow Jewish Representative Council

0141-577 8200
office@glasgowjewishrepcouncil.org
<http://glasgowjewishrepcouncil.org>

The Council was founded in 1914 to speak on behalf of the Jewish community of Glasgow. It fosters good relations between the community and other local religious and civic bodies, and provides a democratic forum for synagogues and welfare, educational, social and cultural organisations, and liaises with them to ensure that the community operates effectively.

<http://garnethill.org.uk/>

Garnethill Synagogue, a Grade A listed building in the city centre, is the oldest synagogue in Scotland, and was founded in 1879, at which time the community numbered around 700. The synagogue was completely refurbished in 1998 and celebrated its 125th anniversary in 2004 with a service attended by Chief Rabbi Jonathan Sacks. Shabbat and festival morning services begin at 10.00am; there are no weekday services.

Tours can be arranged through the synagogue office.

The Synagogue is home to the Scottish Jewish Archive Centre.

Giffnock and Newlands Synagogue is the largest synagogue in Scotland, and is the only one to hold daily morning, afternoon and evening services. The synagogue complex includes the Jewish Community Centre, mikveh, cheder, and Lubavitch restaurant. The premises are used by a wide range of organisations, including the mother and toddlers group, senior citizens friendship club and several youth groups. Shabbat and festival morning services begin at 9.30am; for times of other services please see the website or contact the synagogue office.

John K Clark's Painted Glass Windows

John Clark's painted glass windows, each of which depicts a Jewish festival, were originally commissioned for Queens Park Synagogue (now closed) as part of the Jewish community's contribution to Glasgow European City of Culture 1990. They were subsequently moved to Giffnock and Newlands Synagogue.

above: "The Giving of the Torah on Mount Sinai" and right: "Pesach Seder". More information about the windows is available on John Clark's website at www.glasspainter.com/synagogue/index.html

The stained glass windows from the former Clarkston shul have now also been installed in the upper foyer.

Tours can be arranged through the Glasgow Jewish Representative Council office@glasgowjewishrepcouncil.org / 0141 577 8200.

Kosher Food

The only kosher grocery shops and restaurants in Scotland are in Glasgow and Edinburgh, but a number of supermarkets have small kosher departments. In addition, some food on the general shelves of supermarkets and mini-markets throughout the country has a hechsher [label of rabbinic approval]. The most commonly found are:

Kosher bread and rolls approved by the Sephardi Kashrut Authority, and bearing their logo, can be found in most supermarkets throughout the country. Approved brands supervised include Kingsmill, Mr. Bagels, Allinson, Burgen, Sunblest (bread & crumpets only), Day O Fresh and Mighty White.

Additional information can be found on the websites of the London Beth Din www.kosher.org.uk and Sephardi Kashrut Authority www.sephardikashrut.org
